My dear Sir

I hesitate to write as I am not personally known to you – but I remember seeing you, nearly 30 years ago, at the house of my father, Jonathan Priestman of Newcastle upon Tyne, & I hear that you have visited my sisters, Mrs. Tanner of Oakridge & the Misses Priestman of Bristol, & my niece, Mrs. Helen Clark of Street – & it would give me much pleasure if you & your Son would stay at my house when you come to Newcastle, as I understand that you intend to do.

I live in the Country about 14 miles by Railway from Newcastle but I come into the town almost daily.

I have nothing to offer you but rest in a pleasant country & a warm welcome but I should be very glad if there are sufficient inducement for you to visit us.

Yours very dearly

James Yeaman
